

WIN FOR LESVOS

New campaign in solidarity with the refugees at the European borders, supported by Daniel Craig, Marlene Dietrich, Jürgen Klopp, Lana Wachowski, David Alaba and many more.

Berlin, December 2nd 2020

At the end of July, actor Volker Bruch (“Babylon Berlin”) had initiated the unique campaign “Win for Lesbos”, in which 23 well-known German celebrities helped to raise over half a million Euros to support suffering refugees at the European borders.

Now, together with his colleague Trystan Pütter, they are starting a new campaign for Christmas to raffle off personal items of well-known people which can be won by donation.

Amongst the prominent international supporters are Daniel Craig with a signed, limited edition of the illustrated book “James Bond Archives”, “Matrix” director Lana Wachowski with a sign from the brand-new film adaptation of “Matrix 4” and Rufus Wainwright with handwritten lyrics of his song “Going to a Town”.

There is also support from Germany: actors Daniel Brühl and Elyas M'Barek, artist Daniel Richter, Liverpool-trainer Jürgen Klopp, photographer Ellen von Unwerth, actor Kida Ramadan, model Toni Garrn, musician Bill Kaulitz, the artist Anne Imhof, the music band Die Fantastischen 4, ski legend Felix Neureuther, actresses Diane Kruger and Jeanne Goursaud, presenter Klaas Heufer-Umlauf, the singer LEA, the model Caro Daur, the tennis player Andrea Petkovic, the footballer David Alaba, the band K.I.Z, the football club FC Bayern Munich as well as the legendary Art-Collective 1UP.

Even Marlene Dietrich is joining: Her heirs support the campaign in the spirit of their famous grandmother with a very special rarity – they are donating pictures with handwritten notes from her personal estate.

Tickets can be purchased by making a donation from December 2nd 2020 (01.00 p.m.) to December 24th 2020 (11:59 p.m.) on the following website:

The entire proceeds will be distributed for charitable purposes within the framework of #LeaveNoOneBehind campaign.

Volker Bruch comments on the current situation on Lesbos:

“The refugee camp Moria on Lesbos has burned down. Everyone has seen it. But nothing has improved for the refugees at the European borders.

The emergency shelters in the new camp are not waterproof, there is not enough food, no adequate medical care and now that it is getting cold, the people are defenceless against the weather. Nevertheless, Europe is not stepping up. And neither has the German government presented a plan to deal with the situation appropriately yet.

There is nothing worse than not helping, even though you are able to.”

Trystan Pütter on the campaign:

“We have to act now, and so we are starting a new donation campaign, in order to move the situation of the people at the European borders back into focus, to remind the governments of their obligation and in order to improve the circumstances of people locally with the help of these donations.

What’s more rewarding than giving a piece of solidarity for Christmas – alongside the chance for a very special win.”
